Watson Twp fire devastates family

By Jordan Wilcox

On Friday, January 31st, an unfortunate tragedy befell the Mace Family, when their Watson Township home was burnt to the ground.

The insurance adjuster has not claimed their house on M-222 as a total loss yet, but the fire has nonetheless devas-tated the family.

Over the weekend, Mrs. Mace's sister took to GoFundMe, an online, community-based fundraising platform, to help raise funds for their temporary housing accommodations and insurance deductible.

By Monday night, the family had already received "quite a bit of coats, clothing and blankets," as well as nearly $2,500, or one-third of their $7,500 fundraising goal.

If you would like to contribute to their recovery, their GoFundMe campaign can be found at https://www.gofundme.com/f/aid-for-tracy-and-jasons-fire-recovery. An update posted to the page, says they are only looking for monetary donations at this time.

Watson Township is covered by the Hopkins Area Fire Department. By press time, neither they, nor anyone related to the Maces, had responded to our requests for more information.

Genetski withdraws from Laketown manager search

Bob Genetski

Laketown Township manager candidate Bob Genetski, the current Allegan County Clerk and Register of Deeds, has withdrawn from consideration for the manager position. The board has a special meeting scheduled for 5:30 p.m. Thursday, January 30, 2025, at the township hall, 4338 Beeline Road. The new manager search is on the agenda as well as general discussions on past spending and revenue for the township in preparation for reviewing the draft 2025-2026 township budget.

Genetski's withdrawal from consideration

In an email dated 1:34 p.m. Tuesday, January 28, Genetski asked that his name be removed from consideration for the manager position:

"Please remove my name from the list of candidates for the Laketown Township Manager position.

"It has been a blessing to be considered for the job.

"I look forward to working with you and the Board and serving the hardworking taxpayers of Laketown for a long time as their County Clerk and Register of Deeds.

"I have great confidence the Board of Trustees will find a shared vision on a manager that all five members can support.

"May God Bless you and Laketown for a great 2025," he wrote in the email.

Background

Longtime Manager Al Meshkin announced in July 2024 his retirement effective January 3, 2025. In September 2024 the search for his replacement began under the guidance of Ryan Cotton of the search firm MGT. A search committee composed of all of the members of the current board of trustees as well as members of the board that served through November 20, 2024, narrowed the field from more than 40 applicants to five, and conducted interviews with the five in October. The field was then narrowed to three candidates. The search committee then recommended to the board that Genetski be retained as the new township manager.

On November 13, 2024, the township board unanimously approved negotiations with Genetski within certain financial parameters. In early December a tentative agreement was reached between Genetski and the township that was well within the compensation parameters set by the board. Despite this, in December and January, the board did not approve ratifying the contract with Genetski, with Supervisor Steven Ringelberg and Treasurer Jim Johnson supporting ratification, and Clerk Jim Delaney and Trustees Mike Koeman and Mark Timmerman opposing ratification.

On January 8, 2025, the board by a vote of four members in favor (Johnson, Delaney, Koeman and Timmerman), and one member opposed (Ringelberg), passed a resolution also offering the township manager position to Brandon Mersman, city manager of Bronson, Mich, while also leaving the Genetski contract negotiations outstanding. Supervisor Ringelberg at the time said that he opposed offering the same position to two candidates simultaneously because they both might reject the offer. Further, Ringelberg said that if he was a candidate he would think, "If you want me to come and work for you as your township manager, make me an offer. If you're going to offer it to two people, why are you wasting my time?"

Attorney Ron Bultje had said he was "baffled" at the idea of simultaneous negotiations with both Mersman and Genetski, as reported in The Holland Sentinel on December 13.

"I don't quite understand the concept of negotiating with two candidates," he said via Zoom. "I've just not seen competing candidates negotiating simultaneous contracts and then having an employer pick which one they want. I can't imagine candidates being willing to do that, wanting to do that.

"I've done this job for a long, long time, I don't know how you negotiate simultaneous contracts and what we (would) ask Genetski or Mersman to do. Are we trying to get lowest bidder on the job? I'm just baffled, frankly."

Mersman withdrew from consideration for the position soon after receiving the township's proposal regarding the manager position. On January 15, 2025, the board unanimously revived the contract offer to Genetski, and as noted Genetski has now withdrawn as well.

What's next

The board could decide its next step at the Thursday meeting.

"Everyone on the board loves Laketown Township. I am confident that the board of trustees going forward is going to work together in the best interest of Laketown Township and that we will identify and retain a great new professional manager for Laketown Township," said Ringelberg.

The board has a number of options including keeping Ringelberg on as an interim manager until a new manager starts, hiring a temporary professional manager to serve until a new manager is hired, beginning a new search immediately, or waiting for some period before re-commencing the new manager search.

Cotton's firm, MGT, will continue to assist with the search until a new full-time manager is retained by the township, and those continuing services will not cost the township extra money. Cotton has suggested that the board take some time over the next few months to work together and establish a reputation as a cohesive well-functioning board prior to going back out into the market for a long-term full-time manager.

Ringelberg, who is an attorney and who has also been chief executive officer and chief financial officer for several privately held companies that are much larger than the township in terms of staff and budget, worked full-time with Meshkin and the township staff starting on December 16, 2024, to ensure a smooth transition once Meshkin retired. On December 30, the board appointed Ringelberg interim manager without pay effective upon Meshkin's retirement. On January 8, the board approved a salary for Ringelberg.

Fennville Schools' mechanic achieves third perfect bus inspection

By Jordan Wilcox
Assistant Publisher

For the third time in five years, Fennville Public Schools lead mechanic, Dave Johnson, has achieved a perfect school bus inspection score.

Perfect inspections are rare and very hard to achieve. Less than 5% of Michigan school districts receive a 100% inspection on the first attempt.

Annual 80+ point school bus inspections are conducted by former bus mechanics and commercial enforcement officers, employed by the Michigan State Police's School Bus Inspection Division.

Inspectors thoroughly check all parts of the school bus, including its 26-passenger seats, electrical systems, mechanical systems, tires, and exits.

Buses are then tagged based on the results.

A green tag means it's in complete safe and working condition. A yellow tag is for minor issues that don't prevent the bus from running, like a burnt-out light. And a red tag indicates the bus has a major problem, such as an exhaust leak, and must be laid up for repair.

All buses must pass, or be repaired and reinspected before use.

Johnson's record in 5 regular inspections and three rechecks, is three

Fennville Public Schools Lead Mechanic, Dave Johnson

100%, and two 95%, having only one yellow-tagged bus, and one red-tagged bus in 8 inspections.

After the inspection, Fennville Public Schools issued the following statements on Facebook:

"At Fennville, school bus safety isn't just a priority—it's a commitment." … "Maintaining top safety standards is a team effort between transportation supervisors, drivers, and mechanics. Drivers conduct thorough pre and post-trip inspections, while mechanics ensure every bus remains in peak condition."…"Thank you, Fennville Transportation Team, for your dedication to student safety!"

Fennville Public Schools operates 14 buses, transporting 800 students daily.

The public can view any school bus's inspection record by scanning the QR code on its entry door.

Cancer vs Wayland coaches raises $22k for research

By Jordan Wilcox
Assistant Publisher

Wayland Union High School held their annual Coaches vs. Cancer games this past Friday, January 31st.

Coaches vs. Cancer (CvC) is a nationwide fundraiser for the American Cancer Society, led by the National Association of Basketball Coaches (NABC).

Participating high schools typically dedicate two varsity basketball games, (one boys, one girls), where they hold a variety of different promotions, of which the proceeds go to the Cancer Society.

Wayland began the festivities with a Coaches vs. Cancer assembly, consisting of Ro Sham Bo, musical chairs, a mattress relay, the revealing of the staff Masked Singers, and a performance by the Varsity Dance Team.

Later in the day, both basketball games were played.

Overall, Wayland Union High School raised a whopping $22,000 for the fundraiser.

Behind the Rise and Ride Ranch

By Cindy Sasser

I fell in love with the story behind the Rise and Ride Ranch in Allegan, created and operated by two sisters and their husbands. The love and appreciation they express for each other, their horses, and life at the ranch is awe-inspiring. I had so much fun corresponding with them and I would like to share their story in their own words.

The beginning:

Liz: It started with all of us having dreams of a life involving our animals. Just before COVID, my husband Carson and I started looking for a place for our three horses, Cody, Charlie and Story, where we could live our lives together with all of our animals and my sister whom I bring everywhere with me. After years of searching, we found this place and overnight we were dreaming of our life here! I'll admit, we were nervous about buying such a big place, but also very excited. I was trapped in a factory job and I wanted a change. Carson really supported me through getting out of that situation and making this ranch into a place where I could start my new journey. Before meeting Carson, I was in a very abusive relationship that almost ended my life. Towards the end, I took an MSU college course on horse care and with that knowledge, I secretly brought home Charlie (which is hilarious because how does one hide a large, flamboyant Clydesdale). The abusive relationship took everything from me, but Charlie was something I was able to have for myself and was my safe place. Charlie, like me, also had a broken spirit with trust issues. Together we worked through our traumas and gained more confidence in who we are. Charlie really ignited my passion for horse care specifically. Besides the trauma and trust issues, Charlie came with severe canker (like a cancer) in his back hoof. Carson and I spent 2 hours every night tending to it for more than a year. Mind you, Charlie wasn't the "sweet angel" he is today. It was a challenge that tried our patience and knowledge. It was then that I realized I really enjoyed the healing process and watching Charlie become the best horse version of himself. I started taking more courses, shadowing vets, watching experts in the field online, reading every article, you name it. This was something I really wanted to be good at!

Carolyn: Niall, my husband, was still in England, so I called him every day to fill him in on everything happening here while we waited for the travel ban to lift. Little did we know it would evolve into what it is today! Liz and Carson share a huge passion for animals and their care, while my heart lies in experience design and business. Together, we brainstormed ways to use our passions to make something sustainable. Back then, they only had three horses. Liz started offering lessons and boarding, and I dove into Facebook to promote and connect with other ranches. One day, we stumbled upon a rescue page called "Starry Skies Equine Rescue." A horse named "Gambit" caught our attention, especially with her heartbreaking backstory. Thanks to the money we made from lessons, we were able to bring her home and create a loving family for her. Now, everyone knows her as "Lakota," and she has truly become a favorite among our customers and especially Niall. She has opened up so much since she first came home! She began trusting people more and it was really cool watching people connect with her steady, yet shy, demeanor when they came to our ranch. After Lakota, a few more horses came home from that rescue and each of them brought their own interesting personalities and needs. They each clicked with different people in different ways. With more horses in our family, we could start doing horseback rides. But the business didn't come right away. We printed fliers, shared our ranch on groups, left business cards and brochures in stores, etc. It was definitely a slow start! To help boost things, we did an "Open Ranch" event to bring in a little more money for our horses and to get our name out to the locals! We brought in local vendors and did horse activities on site. It was a HIT; more than 500 people came! We worked hard, saved up money, and brought home more rescue horses in time.

We take care of them first:

Liz: When our horses first arrive, I monitor them for weeks, head to toe. I take in details like coat length/health, skin condition, hoof condition, confirmation, muscle development, x-rays, teeth, eating patterns, breathing patterns, even staring at their poop. Horses can't tell us what's going on and naturally, as flight animals/prey, they try their absolute best to hide anything and everything wrong with them. It's important we take that time to understand them and what they're unhappy with. An unhappy horse doesn't heal well and we want them to have both health and happiness. Another part of my monitoring when they first arrive is understanding their personalities and potential traumas. This involves hanging around with them, offering treats and "questions," establishing myself as their friend but also a leader they can trust. I feel around certain muscles for pain/trauma to see if I can get them on the massage and chiropractic appointment right away. This part can be dangerous as not all horses are open to trusting when they first arrive. They're hurting and we need to be patient. I'll sit for hours watching them in their pastures by themselves and then when they're acclimated with their herd. This helps me understand where they should go and who they can be pastured with. It also shows me how they feel and how confident they are in themselves. One of my recent horses, Peepers, has been a favorite of mine. She was so shy at first and was definitely head shy; we learned later that she must've gotten kicked in the face based on what our chiropractor felt. Over time, she became this energetic goofball that loves to show off in the arena. Once we know our horse inside and out, they begin our regular care plan. Each of our horses have their own special blend of food, medications, minerals and vitamins. Part of our care is scheduling monthly farrier, massage, and chiropractic appointments for our herd. These appointments serve two huge purposes. One, they make our horses happy! Two, they help us keep tabs on our horse's condition below the surface. Our massage therapist and chiropractor can tell us when certain muscles or bones are out of place. We use that knowledge to help us pinpoint subtle behavior patterns, changes in the way they carry themselves, changes to the type of riders we allow on them, their schedules, etc. Our farrier shows us in the hoof where a horse may be lacking in certain minerals, if their environment needs adjusting, or if they're wearing down their hooves differently based on how they're carrying themselves. We are constantly observing herd dynamics and making sure horses are partnered with others that play well together. Every horse is different and I swear it's like an elementary school yard some days. Our oldest horse, Story, is almost 30 years old, yet you'll see him running and kicking around like he's 6! He's with our other boys; they remind me of the Goonies when they're together. Hagrid, Duchess, and Rhaenyra know they're pretty horses and love to strut around in their own club and play chase as the "popular" kids on the playground.

Carolyn: A big part of healing is giving horses positive interaction with our customers! In "Heal Their Mind," on our website, we talk about how our customers become part of the healing process. Horses thrive with positive interactions. Many of the horses we have come from not-so-great interactions with humans. Hagrid is a great example of this as we learned from the rescue that he had some very harsh training. As a result, he struggles with humans, specifically approaching his left side. Over time, he has met so many people in our meet and greets and has opened up through positive humans, brushing, laughter, treats and hugs! On trail rides, people are typically filled with joy and excitement, the horses can sense this and it creates a positive time for them that they enjoy!

The work:

Liz: It's a LOT of work managing 20 horses on top of ranch upkeep, the horseback riding business, customer phone calls, social media, etc. I take care of feeding, vet and regular care appointments, pastures, daily checks, blanketing this time of year, customer inquiries, and everything to do with the horseback riding prep. Carson takes care of the ranch, repairs, hay, feed from the mill, expenses, feeding at night, predator checks, etc. He has a full-time job, so the ranch is his 5-9 after his 9-5. He's very kind and shares his heart with all the life here. He absolutely LOVES his ducks and taking care of them. Just like I am with horses in knowing every quirk, Carson knows every duck's quirk and their daily routines. I mean, he counts them daily to make sure everyone is there and will go around the whole property at night to make sure no one is missing. His strength helps keep things running smoothly and I can count on him to address the many upkeep needs around here. He's quite literally the back bone!

Carolyn: I take care of the digital piece of the ranch. I built and managed our website and booking system from scratch based on everything I've learned from our customers over the years. I'm proud of our booking system as I was able to design it to consider our horse's schedules. We divide up our riders by weights when booking. Behind the scenes, I have certain horses tied to those weights with priorities to make sure the right horse is assigned to people and people can't overbook horses that shouldn't carry certain weights. I also take all the pictures and videos you see online and manage our Facebook, TikTok, and Instagram accounts. Since I too work a full-time job, this is my 5-9 after my 9-5. Niall is our main guide for the ranch. He has the same passion for animals and loves taking time to understand and care for them. He also has a place in his heart for the human experience. Niall loves the world around him and loves hearing about the people on his rides. He tells me stories about the different things he learns and the connections he made while guiding! He also helps my sister with feeding and other ranch chores. The biggest role he plays is helping with the house. Given his English background, he values family time and making sure everyone eats healthy homecooked meals. He'll clean around the house while we work and go out of his way to make our favorite things when he's noticed we've had a rough week.

Some advice for horse owners:

Stay true to your values! If you're a ranch/horse owner reading this, please don't be afraid to set boundaries and do what you know is right for your horse! People can really make you feel bad sometimes; we get occasional flak over our rules about weight-to-height, mounting from both sides, walk only, etc. It's not about "ruining the fun" or "not being inclusive." Those words really hurt us defending the horses in this industry. A horse's ability should not be solely measured by their physical size and appearance. It's okay to say no on behalf of your horses!

A true spirit of TLC and commitment well expressed in these words, "Our goal when we adopt is to give that horse their FOREVER home and we mean it!" Read more about each horse and the rides offered at: www.riseandrideranch.com.

Head Start impact strong in Allegan County

By Lisa Evans & Gari Voss

When President Donald Trump signed the executive order to freeze federal funding of grants and loans, non-profits and others were extremely confused and unsure of their future because much of their budgets rely on federal monies. With the blocking of the executive order by the courts, some of the projects took a deep breath and moved forward cautiously.

One of the programs that feared for a funding void was Head Start. After questioning more deeply, Executive Director of Community Action of Allegan County (CAAC) learned that the Head Start and preschool funds would not be frozen.

Director Evans reflected on some of the mis-information that has been shared, and how CAAC has worked to provide a well-managed program for children and families across the years. In "Reaffirming the Strength and Integrity of Head Start", Evans explains the work of Head Start and its importance to the children and families of Allegan County.

A recent article, Viewpoint: Programs at Head Start negligent, mismanaged, questioning the management, Source: The Wall Street Journal, overlooks the important distinction between interim-managed programs and longstanding providers like Community Action of Allegan County (CAAC). Interim management is a rare emergency measure triggered by serious issues like health and safety concerns or fiscal mismanagement. It aims to stabilize services and minimize disruptions for children and families. Once re-established, the grant is transitioned to a permanent community-based organization. This rare intervention does not reflect the success of stable, well-established programs like CAAC.

For over 60 years, CAAC has provided high-quality early education, health services, and family support to thousands of children throughout Allegan County in Southwest Michigan. This past year alone, CAAC helped 344 children prepare for preschool and kindergarten - healthier, better prepared, and more confident because of Head Start. Of the 344 children, 100% received essential medical screenings, immunizations, and developmental support, ensuring they were ready to learn. Families also benefited, with over 295 receiving critical assistance for housing, employment, and other basic needs.

In rural areas, Head Start is more than a preschool—it is a lifeline for families, a hub of resources, and a catalyst for success. CAAC operates with an average 14% administrative rate, meaning the vast majority of funding goes directly to serving children and families. Our commitment to quality and accountability is unwavering.

Over the past 60 years, Head Start has served more than 37 million children, many of whom have faced significant barriers to success. Decades of research and countless personal stories highlight how the program has empowered families, improved school readiness, and strengthened entire communities—often operating on limited resources.

Key impacts of Head Start include:

• Educational Gains: Longitudinal studies show that Head Start alumni are more likely to graduate from high school, attend college, and achieve higher earnings compared to peers who did not participate in the program.

• Health Outcomes: Head Start plays a crucial role in early screenings for vision, hearing, and developmental delays, identifying and addressing health concerns that, if left untreated, could hinder a child's growth, learning, and long-term success.

• Parental Engagement: The program fosters strong family involvement, encouraging parents to take an active role in their child's education. Through program governance, parents gain valuable experience in policymaking and budget management, skills that extend beyond the classroom and into their communities.

However, the full impact Head Start programs have in local communities cannot be measured. Helping our youngest community members be active and engaged learners is some of the most important work CAAC does. Setting students off on the right foot as they begin their educational journey is so important as it provides them with the tools to become successful adults and community members.

Since 1965, Head Start has been a pillar of early childhood education in the United States, providing comprehensive support to low-income children and families. More than just academic preparation, Head Start offers a holistic model of services unmatched by any other program. By addressing the many factors that influence a child's success, it lays a solid foundation for lifelong learning and development.

Head Start works. It changes lives. And in Allegan County, CAAC will continue delivering the highest standards of education and care to our youngest learners, ensuring a brighter future for them and our communities.

About- Lisa Evans is the Executive Director of CAAC, driving a team of nearly 130 dedicated employees and managing a dynamic $9.5 million budget to uplift rural Michigan communities. A fierce advocate for Allegan County, she is a bold leader in local government, education, and regional initiatives, relentlessly championing community development and transformative service that assist low-income and asset limited families.

TAG Team 2025 Grants awarded

On January 31, 2025, non-profits across Allegan County learned the decision of the 2025 TAG Grants when the Teens Aiding Growth (TAG) Team, the Youth Advisory Council of the Allegan County Community Foundation (ACCF), announced their 2025 awards.

The annual TAG Team grant application cycle invites all non-profit organizations and government entities that provide services, opportunities, or support for individuals 0-19 years old in Allegan County to apply. The TAG Team is proud to provide 15 organizations with funding this year.

These requests represent financial need across the county in the areas of access to medical care, basic needs, behavioral health, education, and enriching experience. The focus of the grants is to concentrate on children and teens.

Vicki Knuckles, ACCF Grants Program Officer, explained, "The TAG Members take this process very seriously. They review, consider, and discuss all aspects of each proposal submitted."

Applications for the 2025 TAG Grants were submitted by non-profits in November 2024. The TAG Team, comprised of high school students from schools across Allegan County, spent hours reviewing the applications to ensure that each matched the requirements and vision of the grant. Discussion then examined the needs that would be met should the non-profit program receive the funding.

Knuckles shared, "The review process is extensive, and members participate in thoughtful discussion before making their final recommendations."

TAG Chair, Audrey, from Saugatuck High School, shared, "The grant review process this year was an exciting one. We were given so many great applications from so many amazing organizations. And though all of us had to make some very hard decisions, I'm very proud of the selections our team made. I hope that with the grant money we gave to these organizations, we will see a lot of positive changes in Allegan County in the upcoming year."

Congratulations to the organizations and project receiving grants this year:

Armintrout's Nursery blazes path for Christmas trees and more

By Gari Voss

Armintrout West Michigan Nursery is a 3rd generation company in Allegan, MI. Running a family business that passes across generations does not always lend itself to gathering the family. A won-derful moment: Hudson Armintrout, Zac Armintrout (3rd generation), Isla Armintrout, Christine (Appleton) Armintrout, Sam Armintrout, Paul Armintrout (3rd generation), Angela (Aksamit) Ar-mintrout, Jack Armintrout, David Armintrout (2nd generation), Nancy (Smith) Armintrout, Will Armintrout (3rd generation), McKayla (Burmeister) Armintrout, Tessa Armintrout, Ireland Ar-mintrout, Luke Jefferies.

"Family" businesses can be the cornerstone of a municipality's economic health. In Allegan, MI, there are businesses that have been leaders in their industries over time. In the industry of nursery stock and Christmas trees, Armintrout's West Michigan Nursery, Inc. has led the way for what will soon be 100 years.

As their bio states, "Armintrout's West Michigan Farms Inc. is a three generation family owned company. Since the founding of our Nursery in 1935, it has been our goal to provide the highest quality Evergreen Conifers, Spruce, Pine and Fir to the market."

In 1935, Paul Armintrout decided to plant trees. This decision took Paul away from his father's grocery and meat market that was situated where the Hubbard Street parking lot currently resides. He continued to assist with butchering, but the open fields kept calling him.

As Paul moved deeper into the tree nursery business, he encouraged his father, Lemuel, to plant trees. It seemed natural since his dad had vacant land at the "Home Farm" on 113th Avenue. Therefore, the "first" generation really brought the "pre-first" generation into the tree business.

In the beginning, Paul focused on Christmas trees and nursery stock, and though his vision changed over time on the varieties of trees, it never left the evergreen varieties.

In a conversation, Dave, the "second" generation of Armintrouts, shared, "He [Paul] had many interests of which he sometimes described as 'impossible, impractical or too damn expensive', and this was just one of them. The first trees planted were Christmas trees. A nursery on the lakeshore gave him advice. He bought a blue spruce for $10 that was in the ground. All by himself, he dug it up and used a tripod to hoist it out of the ground and load it then reverse the process to plant it. He sold it for $20 dollars. At that time, he was working for his dad for $20 a week, so he thought the tree business paid a bit better."

Paul's father not only had Armintrout & Sons Grocery but ran a slaughterhouse at his farm. As he moved deeper into the tree business, Paul kept butchering and went to auctions to purchase cattle. As he got busier with the trees, he left the grocery.

About that time, Paul Schroeder, who was the state forester in the early 40s, talked Paul into moving into seedlings. In the early 50s, there was a boom in growing Christmas trees. Armintrout's had regular customers who over the years purchased millions of seedlings. Dave shared that seed-ling sales gave Paul a real boost in establishing his nursery business.

"Dad had been growing seedlings and began supplying the Christmas tree growers while still growing Christmas trees himself. My father was the first president of the Michigan Christmas Tree Growers Association," shared Dave. "Then I was the president and the first person to be the second generation president of the association. Zac (Dave's son) was the president, so he was the first third generation president."

Research shows that it is important not to pressure family members into taking over the family business. Dave verified that his dad did not push him into the business, but Dave loved being out of doors and working with the trees. Similarly, Dave did not pressure his family into taking over the Armintrout Nursery, but three of the boys, Zac (General Manager), Paul (Operations Manager), and Will (Team Lead Manager or Technical Manager) are currently in charge of the company.

Paul shared that he and his brothers went to college for different areas of business and even had experience in other industries, but they came back to the nursery business. "I really enjoy being outdoors. In addition, I like the 'illusion' of free will where I can make my own schedule and choices."

One thing that is known about a successful business is that it must adapt. "One thing about the Christmas tree business is that it cycles," explained Dave. "For a time, there is a boom when everyone is planting trees. The Extension Service would encourage everyone to plant trees, so they are way overplanted. Then it all crashes. This has happened about three times."

When first getting into the business, the Blue Spruce was very popular as seedlings, Christmas trees and landscaping stock, but there have been some problems with them over the last 20 years. That market has softened because of the diseases that infected some of the pines that were grown in the 70s and 80s.

"Really COVID brought changes. People were home more and began concentrating on improving their landscaping," recollected Paul. "We specialize in selling to landscapers. That includes homes, but even more so, businesses and solar farms. The trees are used for screens around the perimeter and can be interspersed in the farms."

Paul had purchased a 40-acre farm in the 1930s with the help of his dad. That is where Dave grew up. After that Paul rented some land while continuing to purchase and lease land to grow the business.

Though they no longer deal in seedlings, Armintrout's West Michigan Nursery includes over 1000 acres which allows them to offer a large supply and selection of wholesale B&B (balled and burlapped) and potted trees, as well as cut Christmas Trees, Boughs, Wreaths and Garland for the holidays.

The seeds often came from seed collectors in the Western mountains. Dave interjected, "Many of these are the same companies that were around when Dad began the business. The trees require weed, frost and disease control along with constant watering. It isn't as intense as a greenhouse business, but we are dealing with the natural elements."

The trees in which Armentrout's specialize are what the landscaping and nursery markets want. "They are in traditional landscaping. They tend to be more ornamental. Over the years, there have been changes in taste or there is a health issue with a certain variety."

Adapting to the market is the name of the game, but 3rd generation Paul shared that some of the biggest changes have come with innovation. "There is more mechanization and technology. This has been necessary because of the labor market dwindling. Plus, we are better stewards of the land to insure we get the best product without depleting the soil."

When queried as to why Armintrout's has been successful, Dave responded, "We do want to have the best trees, but more important, we want to serve our customers. We have had some of the same customers for 30 years and even longer. In addition, the industry is comprised of people who are on good terms. Everyone knows everyone. When there is a question or concern, we are free to ask. Even though we are in competition, we share information."

In the case of Armintrout's, they are in the same proximity in Allegan as Badger's and Peter-son's nurseries. But Dave explained that the landscape market is very widespread. Armintrout's Christmas trees may go all the way to Colorado, but Chicago has been a good market. In terms of the nursery stock, Dave has done business not only in Chicago, but also in Iowa, Kansas, and Missouri where they have been good customers. Even Tennessee has been within their almost 500 mile radius of Allegan.

"When we were first doing Christmas trees, we would send loads to Florida and Texas and places in between," Dave shared. "We do not go that far now."

When questioned on what enticed him to stay in the nursery business, Dave explained, "I grew up in it. In college, I studied horticulture and got an MBA in marketing at Michigan State. I actually got a BA in psychology. This helped, but I enjoy the out of doors and you actually learn as you go along."

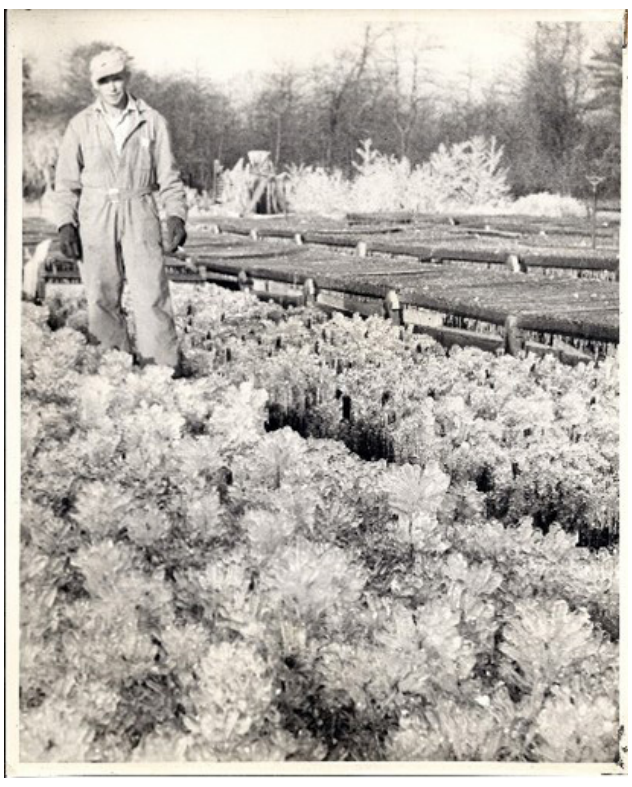
Currently, the boys (Armintrout's third generation) employ a core of about 20 workers then this increases to 40 or 50 during the 'season'. The spring and fall seasons are very busy with summer right behind. During spring and fall, there is most of the harvesting and selling, but there is also planting. Dave felt that both spring and fall were good for planting, especially when there is plenty of moisture.

During the summer, Christmas trees are shaped for sale. Frasier fir has taken over the Christmas tree market. Different species have different characteristics that dictate when to prepare trees for market.

Dave feels that much of what he has learned about the stock depends on current demand. Much of "education" is learned by doing it then talking with others. In that way, the company branches off. Yearly conferences of the associations are held to make agreements on what should be done. Gatherings like the Michigan Nursery and Landscape Association offered in winter and summer provide opportunities to share ideas. Then there are monthly magazines.

"Conferences are great times to visit with old friends or customers," Dave mused.

An important lesson that Dave learned from his father Paul was "no matter what you do, do something that you like". That may be the key to success for any business. This has certainly been the mantra for the Armintrout West Michigan Nursery business. Doing what you like and taking care of customers remain forefront in the minds of the Armintrout men who for more than three generations have honed the nursery business in Allegan, Michigan.



Running a nursery of trees requires thinking faster than nature. Paul G. Armintrout is running frost protection on seedlings during an early Spring Frost. This was in the 60's when Paul, the founder of Armintrout Nursery, dealt heavily in seedling growth and distribution. Photo: Armintrout ar-chives

MAKING SENSE OF INVESTING

Even county governments spend unwisely: Case study, Allegan County

MIKE'S MUSINGS

MIKE WILCOX
■ PUBLISHER ■

Our government, whether it is at the local, county, state or federal level, makes numerous decisions on how they spend taxpayers' money. Some we can agree with, some we can't. I would like to think with the advent of social media, more people are paying attention as to how their money is being spent.

Here's an example of one contract signed by Allegan County that came across my desk. I was shocked when I read it. To summarize Allegan County, approved by the Board of Commissioners has been subsidizing an internet media company located in Saginaw.

The company, Issue Media Group, in their accepted proposal, said, "Because of the decade-long decline of local newspapers across the country, many communities are left with significantly diminished news coverage, creating community news deserts in many rural communities."

Mind you this addressed to Allegan County where there are three vibrant weekly newspapers- the Allegan County News, the Saugatuck/Douglas Commercial Record and the Plainwell/Otsego Union Enterprise. Our office is smack dab across from the courthouse and we spend six figures each year on reporters to cover the news in the county. Allegan County is hardly a "news desert."

We are not subsidized by the County. I never thought of asking for taxpayers to pay our way. That money should go to essential services, not some company 150 miles away that if you look at their current articles, not one is about Allegan County. To say I'm upset, is an understatement.

One also has to wonder how you and I can even subscribe to the subsidized Issue Media Group to find the so-called articles. In Allegan County it is called The Lakeshore and actually covers several counties up and down the Lake Michigan Lakeshore. In mid-Michigan it is called The Epicenter. Unless you are familiar with the publications, you wouldn't know they exist. I venture to say at least 90 percent of the taxpayers that pay towards the pubs, are not aware of their existence.

On the other hand our newspapers are everywhere. Any store that has a large volume of customers has them. You can purchase a subscription and get them through mail. You can get a subscription online directly to your email.

Issue Media was also able to get money from the Allegan County Community Foundation, which granted is a private charity, but again, why would they subsidize a so-called competitor of their own county newspapers. The same could be asked of Mid-Michigan College in Clare County, that is also providing public money to support Issue Media. In the case of both entities we publish numerous press releases free of charge about their good deeds.

You gotta wonder what else our county governments are spending needless dollars on. We know spending is crazy at the federal and state levels. It is well documented. Thank God, for DOGE and their efforts to clean it up at the federal level. But one would expect county governments to be more diligent when it comes to spending our money.

Life as Performance Art

G CORWIN STOPPEL

Half a dozen decades ago a classmate said something I didn't like. It was insulting and demeaning, and left me with a choice. I could either turn his nose to twelve or tattle to the teacher. I chose the latter and promptly snitched on the kid. Right after school, he turned my nose to twelve as a reminder that snitches get stitches.

Over the years I have spent considerable time and effort trying to figure out why some people love making insulting remarks to others. For the most part, nearly all of them seem to have rather low self-esteem. They try to cover it up by insulting someone else. It is a smoke screen, much like the Wizard of Oz used to hide that he was a mere mortal working behind a curtain.

. There are those who want to get attention. Instead of saying something pleasant or positive, they say something nasty so that other people will notice them. A few people will go along with them, but the majority will not. They roll their eyes. Others think they are being clever, although they often fall short of their goal and show their obnoxious side. Nearly all of them, to a greater or lesser extent are bullies who are too frightened for an open discussion.

Once I understood that, instead of wanting to respond, I started to truly pity them. It is simply sad they choose to live this way when they could be so much happier. Given the chance, they drag others down with them. After a short time, I found myself much happier after cutting them out of my life. Getting rid of them also meant they were no longer taking free rent in my mind. We can refuse to walk on the proverbial eggshells around them, nor uncomfortably listening to their vitriol, even when it is cloaked in an attempt at humor.

A good example is the late British actress, Maggie Smith. She had some good writers who created the screen persona of a sharp-tongued character. If you ever watched Downton Abbey you soon realized that she easily insulted everyone around her, including her own family. Once, she went so far as to snap at her son, demanding to know why he had to be so nice. In real life, she was a very different person, just as the character Jack Benny as the perpetual cheapskate was very different from Jack Benny the generous man in real life.

After figuring that out, as I wrote, I cut them out of my life. Maybe that wasn't a nice thing to do, but I really did not need their nastiness taking up what little time I have left.

No doubt you remember just a few years ago when there was a move afoot to silence anyone who said anything with which another person or group disagreed. If their words or actions did not support another group, they were boycotted because they did not make the group members and their allies "feel safe." That is a very dangerous ideology because it means there can be no opposing voices. It is another form of coercion, bullying, and oppression. We saw it happen with some social movements, and of course, in politics. One of the most recent examples came with the Israeli war against Hamas in Gaza.

On some college campuses, anyone who dared to say anything positive about Israel, much less support them, was risking their reputation, livelihood, and life.

Politics has always been a firestorm of insults. Periodically, an elected or appointed official gets "mustard up their nose" as the French call it, and demands that opponents should not be allowed to say something irritating.

It often comes down to the limits of free speech. It apparently is perfectly all right for one person to bully and insult others, but then cry "foul" if someone returns the favor. It is a matter of 'I can say whatever I like and insult whomever I choose, but don't you dare try it."

In 2019, England's Member of Parliament Ann Widdecombe, was asked to speak at the Oxford University Union on the topic of free speech. She said:

"Nobody has the right to live their lives being protected from offense, or from insults, or hurt feelings. It is an occasional hazard of living in society. And if you really can't take it, become a hermit."

Recently, there has been considerable chatter about the sermon preached by Bishop Budde in the National Cathedral at the National Prayer Service. Like thousands of clergy before her, she spoke on the subject of showing mercy to those on the fringes of society. There are nearly a hundred references to mercy in the Old Testament, and many more in the Gospels and Epistles. This message of mercy has been a theme used by countless clergy in countless churches over the centuries.

Apparently, it was not well received by several people in the front rows. Instead of saying nothing, or at least saying nothing in public, the result was a series of insulting remarks. What made it worse was when one of his minions in the House of Representatives piled on by saying that the bishop's name should go on the deportation list. I do not think that idea has much traction to it, although it does raise a frightening specter about our rights to freedom of speech and freedom of religion.

This might be the thin edge of the wedge that leads to censorship of what you and I can say without being reported or even punished, and even what can be printed in this and other newspapers. It could, as in the days of the Puritan Theocracy of early New England, lead to the censorship of the pulpit. That is something we should all find frightening.

One of the important roles of religion is speaking truth to power. Religious leaders have courageously done that for centuries. It has always been the responsibility of the clergy to point out to even powerful individuals that they are still accountable to God. Even when truth is spoken in gentleness and love it is always risky because those in power don't like to be challenged.

We all need to remain vigilant.

Rev. Budde is hero for speaking out

Dear Editor,

What is a hero? The modern definition is: someone who is admired for their courage selfishness and noble quality, who is willing to take risk or make sacrifice in order to help others to achieve a noble good, in spite of what might happen to them.

The Rt. Revd. Mariann Edgar Budde is my hero. " Her courage in speaking out for the people who are scared, the gay, lesbians, transgender children who fear for their lives. Having compassion for those who do the jobs United States citizens do not want to do. These people may not be citizens but the vast majority are not criminals. God teaches us to be merciful." Hate will never make the United States great again.

Sincerely,
MartyRose McLeod

China Ascendancy poses major threat

Dear Editor:

We live in a global economy. Free trade with friendly nations, coupled with our vast natural resources and a culture that prizes strong individualism and entrepreneurship, has allowed our economy to be the largest, most stable, and robust in the world.

However, our economy and security are now under threat by the China Ascendancy; a group of hostile, non-democratic nations that consist of: Russia, China, North Korea, Iran and its proxies, Hamas and Hezbollah. The Ascendancy wishes to supplant the U.S. as the dominant economy in the world. They resent our economy, military, and the democratic rights and individual freedoms we have that stand in stark contrast with the oppression they impose on their own people and the nations around them.

The Ascendancy has been hard at work destabilizing the world, conquering trade routes, and controlling crucial resources. Witness Iran's attempt to crush Israel in the Middle East, that vital region that has more oil than all the Western hemisphere nations combined. And China, who uses what is called "gray zone" tactics to intimidate Taiwan and nearby nations to gain Taiwan's 60% share in the global semiconductor and 90% of the chip industry; products that we take for granted but whose components are ubiquitous in every single piece of technology we use.

And then there is Russia, who uses hybrid warfare to break the economic and cultural bonds between the U.S. and the European Union (a partnership that represents a massive 1/3 of all global trade and investment). This hybrid type of warfare falls just below the threshold of direct assault, but yet is designed to goad, frustrate, and weaken us, all the while maintaining the ability of Russia to deny any involvement. They are a nation that seeks to reconquer its old imperial territory and has been working towards that goal since 1991. Russia, like the other members of the Ascendancy, seek to control the natural resources of the world and shipping lanes to the detriment of the U.S. and other democratic nations.

George Canning, a British stateman who served at the beginning of the 19th century said, "We shall proceed upon the principle, that any nation of Europe that starts up with a determination to oppose… the common enemy of nations… becomes instantly our essential ally." And although he was referring to Napoleon's attempt to conquer Europe, his words are just as applicable today. It is in our best interests (America First) to support nations such as Ukraine, Taiwan, and Israel that are in conflict with the China Ascendancy. Gone are the days when the U.S. could get away with being a relatively weak and isolationist nation. We are a global power now. Our freedom, security, and prosperity rest upon a strong global economy and fair trade.

Nailed it!

Dear Editor:

USA problem rising, not from all the mollycoddling around the public fringes of American citizenry, the Ds, nor from long smoldering, recently burst into the flames, the Rs, of the Trumpster dumpster fire of this day. It has been a slow creeping satisfaction of complacency over the last 70 years convincing ourselves that our American republic, American exceptionalism, could, in a self-correcting fashion, take care of itself. It cannot.

We Sovereigns of the American public are at fault, verily have failed, as we have allowed Congress to disregard their responsibility toward our America. Yet they get elected and more so, re-elected.

Stated clearly in American Covenant, page 155 by Yuval Levin:

"Congress does not want to take up the most difficult public questions, because members feel safer letting those be decided by the other two branches while they act as pundits on the sidelines. Congress is weak, simply put, because its members want it to be weak. And that weakness invites aggression and hyperactivity by both presidents and courts. Many of the most contentious and complicated cases before the Supreme Court arise because Congress has legislated too vaguely, or has delegated its authority to the executive branch in constitutionally dubious ways. A lot of executive overreach is, ultimately, a function of legislative underreach."

Smug and self-satisfied yet, we are now up to the brink in the brinkmanship game. So, we find we are here and now, very obvious and familiar although, sadly and very possibly to late to effect a fix.

Dang!

Trump's J6 pardons are outrageous

Letter to Editor (And all who claim to cherish Democracy),

Hundreds of police officers were injured at our nation's Capitol on January 6, 2021—attacked by a mob of thousands attempting to stop the peaceful transfer of power. Law enforcement officers suffered traumatic brain injuries, broken ribs, concussions, fractures, and more from being attacked with flag poles, metal stakes, fire extinguishers, and mace. People died that day, and others in the weeks that followed. The insurrection resulted in one of the worst days of injuries for law enforcement in the United States since the Sept.11, 2001, terrorist attacks.

With his first official action upon return to the White House, Trump pardoned all of the criminals convicted with crimes related to the insurrection. Among the over 1500 rioters pardoned, were more than 200 who had pleaded guilty to assaulting police. Leaders of the extremist Proud Boys and Oath Keepers groups who were serving up to 22--year sentences for their roles in the violent attempt to overturn the 2020 election were released with the stroke of Trump's pen.

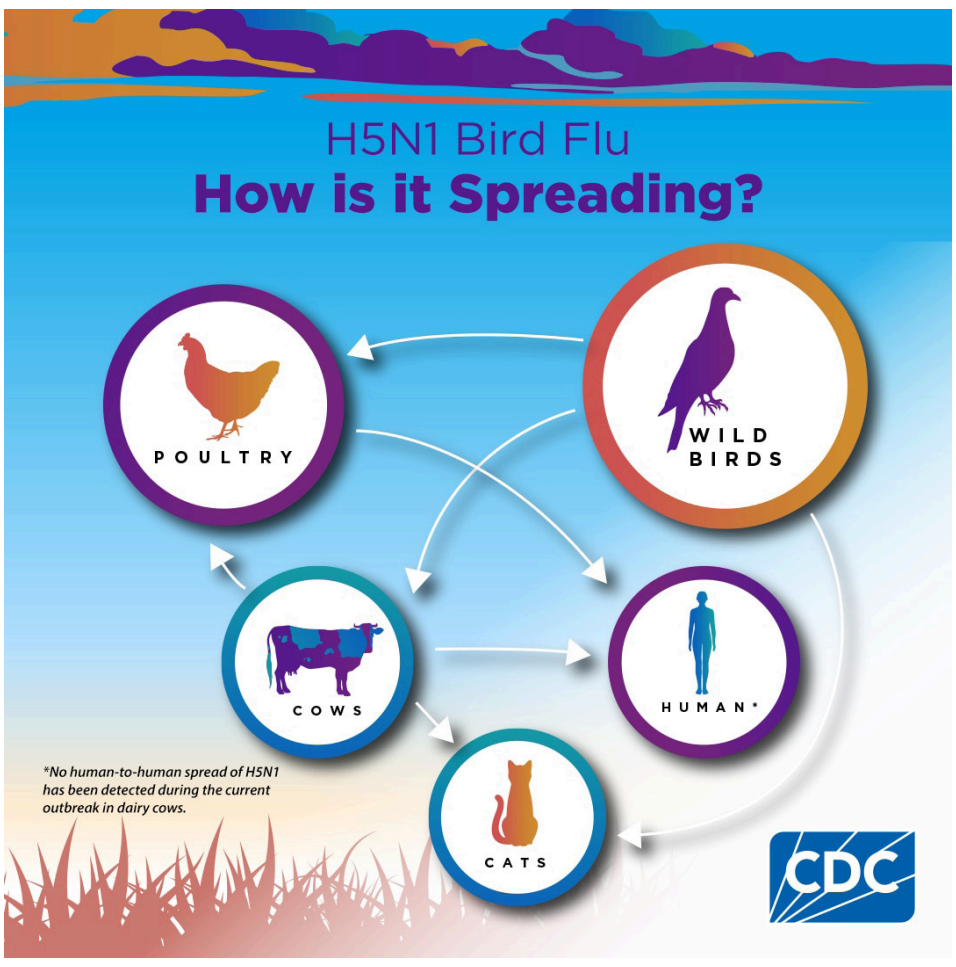
It is not happenstance that Donald Trump announced that he was going to make these pardons on the day he declared his candidacy at Waco, Texas. By announcing his candidacy at the scene of the 1993 bloody and violent confrontation between members of an American extremist movement and law enforcement, in which many officers lost their lives, Trump ingratiated himself into the insurrectionist, anti-government movement. He knew what he was doing when he pardoned these individuals. He was sending his militia back out onto the streets of America to silence those that would oppose him.

And already that is happening. One pardoned rioter was re-arrested within days. And another was shot and killed by police during an altercation. The most recognizable rioter who wore horns and coyote fur during his rampage through the US Capitol was pardoned and immediately tweeted "NOW I AM GONNA BUY SOME MOTHA FU*KIN GUNS!!!".

Trump has done a lot of awful things in his first days of tenure, but his pardons are outrageously dangerous. They mock any party claims of law and order. Instead, they clearly indicate the support of chaos, crime, crassness, and anarchy. Even in the most hallowed halls of our Democracy.

With sincere concern,
Leonda Kessinger Shroyer

Bird flu is spreading in Michigan



By John Raffel
Correspondent

ALLEGAN —The highly pathogenic avian or bird flu has shown signs of spreading in Michigan, according to two state departments, county spokesman Jim Story said. "Thus far in recent months the flu has been reported. in Ottawa, Jackson, Macomb, Eaton, Ionia and Wayne counties.

In a recent release, the Department of Natural Resources warned residents to be cautious around wild birds such as ducks, geese and turkeys after a gaggle of 10 dead geese were recently discovered. Across Lake Michigan, Illinois health officials reported hundreds of dead ducks along the Lake Michigan shoreline. The cause of both wild bird die-offs was the avian flu.

Allegan County's agriculture industry features major poultry growers, causing worry and increased attention to the march of the disease across the state. Backyard chicken growers are advised to keep their flocks quarantined. The flu thought to cause raspatory sickness among wildlife and domesticated animals.

Gordon Louis Noggles, 54

Gordon Louis Noggles, born April 8, 1950 in Covert, Michigan, passed away of a heart condition on December 13, 2024 at the age of 74.

A long-time resident of Allegan, Gordon resided at the adult foster care home Sunset House, and lastly at a countryside home through Chrysalis Services. During his years in our community, he was employed for 15 years at Harding's Village Market, frequented local restaurants with friends, and was often

Adam Hughes, 35

It is with heavy hearts that we announce the passing of Adam Hughes, age 35, on January 27, 2025. Adam was a beloved spouse, a devoted parent, son, friend and all-around-one-of-a-kind human. His untimely departure leaves a void that will never be filled but a legacy that will never be forgotten. He passed away surrounded by loved ones and in the comfort of his own home. Adam lived a life filled with love, laughter, and unapologetic sarcasm that always kept those around him on his toes.

Adam was a proud and active member of the Boy Scouts community, always ready to lend a guiding hand and share the joy of the great outdoors and life skills. Adam really had a passion for Boy Scouts since he was a kid, and later on he worked hard to earn his Eagle Scout that he was very proud of. He had even volunteered to be a mentor for fellow scouts, working at Gerber Scout Reservation in Twin Lake, Michigan. When his kids were of age, he became a Den Leader to pass his legacy on to his kids and the kids of the community.

Adam grew up with his grandfather Robert's legacy of Hiscock's Towing in Allegan. This inspired him to tinker under the hood, bringing life back to cars needing repair, a skill he took immense pride in sharing with his kids, friends, and family. A master of wrenches and wit, Adam spent many years working as a diesel semi mechanic at JX Peterbilt in Grand Rapids, getting big rigs back on the road while sharing a few wisecracks along the way. His hands were just as skilled at building a better life for his family.

When not fixing engines, Adam embraced his love for creativity and strategy through hours of video games, Heroclix battles, classic cars, and shooting firearms. His infectious enthusiasm and playful spirit created countless memories with his loved ones.

Above all, Adam was a dedicated spouse to LaVon and an extraordinary parent to Rylee and Wyatt. His unwavering love, endless patience, and boundless joy made him the cornerstone of his family. Whether it was a camping adventure, a late-night gaming session, or a simple moment together at home, Adam treasured every second with those he loved most. His passion for life, humor, and loyalty will be dearly missed by all who knew him. A sharp mind and even sharper humor made him everyone's favorite companion in both serious moments and casual fire nights with family and friends. On most of the fire nights we were surrounded by people he met through the Allegan High School Marching band, and coworkers.

Adam is survived by his loving wife LaVon Hughes, his cherished children Rylee and Wyatt Hughes, his parents Georgia Hiscock and Randy Hughes, sister Amy (Husband Brent) Otte and their children Carlyn, Cheyenne, Cambria Otte, and many Aunts, Uncles and Cousins. Adam is preceded in death by his grandparents Steven and Connie Hughes, and Robert and Arline Hiscock.

A celebration of Adam's life will be held on February 8th starting at 3pm at Christ Community Church 3370 113th Ave, Allegan, MI 49010. In true Adam's fashion, come as you are — cowboy boots, Scout gear, or game shirts welcome. Share your best memories and perhaps a sarcastic remark in his honor.

In lieu of flowers, the family kindly asks for donations to Christ Community Church, Wings of Hope Hospice, and/or the Allegan Troop 91 Boy Scouts.

While our hearts ache at this loss, we are grateful for every laugh, lesson, and unforgettable moment shared with Adam. May his witty spirit and tireless love always be remembered.

LIVING WITH GRIEF

BY RONNIE EWING/ AFTERCARE SPECIALIST

LIVING WITH GRIEF, is a monthly column provided by Gorden Funeral Residence. Each month LIVING WITH GRIEF will feature some helpful advice, as you the reader move forward in your own personal grieving process, or simply want to be educated to help those whom you may know have recently experienced a loss, or traumatic event.

Compassion Fatigue, ever heard of it? Commonly called, "Burn Out", and can be experienced by anybody that is in the line of work that involves caring for people, whether your involved as a:

- First Responder
- Last Responder
- Spiritual Care
- Caregiver
- Clinician
- Teacher, etc.

Compassion Fatigue, left ignored can take one down a very dark path. Most people turn to substance abuse to cope with some of the heaviness incurred especially if emotionally engaged. Professionals are warned, not to become personally involved, but if your human and have a heart, sometimes this can be unavoidable. This sort of fatigue often gets over looked, simply because those in these fields love doing what they do. These aren't regular lines of employment, rather callings if you will. Long short, like Grief this fatigue is trauma. And just like any process just being self aware does not cut it. Having an outlet, support group, self care plan, in place can make a world of a difference. Employers, and certain companies are becoming more aware of this, especially with mental health being on the rise. Staff Counselors, and Professionals in this field are slowly being hired and set into place to help you and I move forward as we continue, LIVING WITH GRIEF.

Wayland Union Theater presents Tuck Everlasting

By Gari Voss

The Wayland Union Theater students will present Tuck Everlasting, with a play book by Claudia Shear and Tim Federle, and music by Miller and Tysen. This musical is based on the book by Natalie Babbitt. Performances will be offered on Friday, February 7, 2025, at 7pm, and Saturday, February 8th at 10am and 2pm.

The audience will meet a family who drinks water from a magical spring and becomes immortal. The family encounters a young girl who lives in their rural New England town. When she becomes friends with one of the sons, he offers her the secret to everlasting life. She must decide if she wants to join her new friends in immortality or live out her normal life.

The WUHS students invite the Wayland community and beyond to the Wayland Union Fine Arts Center to enjoy the musical in the facility that was constructed with funds from the 2008 bond approved by school district voters. The complex, that includes an 800-seat performance venue, a dance studio, and multi-use Grand Hall, offers spaces for rehearsals and performances.

Tickets can be purchased online at wufactickets.ludus.com or at the door for $6.

Fennville prevails in Never Forgotten game over 'Blazers

By Jason Wesseldyk
Sports Editor

FENNVILLE—For three years—2020 through 2022—Ty Rock was part of the Never Forgotten Game between Fennville and Saugatuck as head coach of the Fennville boys basketball team.

On Saturday, Feb. 1, he was part of that game from the other side, as he's in his first season as head coach of the Saugatuck boys basketball team.

And while his Trailblazers fell by a score of 64-38, Rock knew this game was about much more than the final score.

"This is a special night each year," Rock said. "It's always an honor to be part of the Never Forgotten Game."

The game is played in honor of Wes Leonard, the multi-sport standout from Fennville who collapsed after hitting the winning shot to seal a perfect 20-0 regular season for the Blackhawks in 2011. Tragically, Leonard passed away from complications associated with an enlarged heart.

Since then, Leonard's family and friends have been on a mission to keep his legacy alive through the Wes Leonard Heart Team, which donates AEDs to schools and sports organizations throughout the state.

At this year's game, the Heart Team donated 16 AEDs, bringing the total number of AEDs donated to more than 625 in the past 14 years.

The players in this year's game don't have memories of watching Leonard in action, as they were no older than four when he passed away. So first-year Fennville coach Sam Cornett wanted to do something to let his players know just how special Leonard was and what he meant—and continues to mean—to the Fennville community.

That's why Cornett invited Ryan Klingler—Fennville's basketball coach during Leonard's time with the Blackhawks—to speak to the team prior to the game.

"That was both awesome and emotional," Cornett said. "He really got our guys fired up and ready to go. We were so blessed that he would come and talk to the guys."

While Klingler's words provided inspiration for the Blackhawks, it was Saugatuck that came out playing inspired basketball to start the game.

The Trailblazers scored the game's first seven points, prompting Cornett to call a timeout.

Fennville responded in a big way, ending the first quarter on a 14-2 run that included five points from Jesse Bernard.

The Blackhawks kept that momentum going in the second quarter, outscoring Saugatuck 17-7 to take a 31-16 lead.

Gavin Kempker led the charge for Fennville in the second stanza, scoring 12 of his game-best 20 points in the frame.

Bernard added 16 points for the game, while Zay Peoples contributed 14 points to give the Blackhawks a third double-digit scorer.

"It was a tough night for us," Rock said. "We had too many turnovers, and when you give an athletic team like Fennville extra possessions, it will not help."

Sammy Gamboa paced Saugatuck with 11 points, including one of his team's two 3-pointers. Cass Stanberry knocked down the other triple as part of his 9-point effort.

Caiden Pearson and Misael Gamboa chipped in with eight and six points, respectively, in the loss.

Martin, Allegan share SAC boys wrestling championship

COLOMA—A pair of Allegan County boys wrestling teams emerged as co-champions of the SAC.

At the SAC Championship Meet on Saturday, Feb. 1, Martin edged past Allegan by three points (215-212) to earn a share of the league title with the Tigers.

Allegan won the regular-season portion of SAC competition with a perfect 12-0 record in dual meets. The league title is the first for the Tigers since 2016 when they were a member of the Wolverine Conference.

For the Clippers, this marks the second straight season they've won the SAC Championship Meet to earn a share of the league title.

"The kids knew going into the conference tournament what they needed to do if they wanted to have a share of the conference title," Martin coach Logan Curry said. "We were in the same situation last year heading into the conference tournament.

"Our kids rose to the occasion last year and they did it again this year."

Martin and Allegan combined for seven of the 14 individual conference champions.

The Tigers led the way with four individual crowns: Jacob Collier at 113 pounds, Landon Coulson at 150 pounds, Ryan Sparks at 165 pounds and Rysten Williams at 175 pounds.

Logan Gilbert (120 pounds), Cole Reitz (132 pounds) and Haylen Buell (144 pounds) were the weight-class winners for Martin.

Also placing for the Clippers were: Jack Bagwell (second at 165); Malcolm Smith (second at 190); Seth Toris (third at 150); Sam Bleeker (third at 215); Cooper Dinse (third at 285); Jacinto Lopez (fourth at 106); Jayce Ritchie (fourth at 138); Gixxer Blair (fourth at 157); and Jakub Tomyslak (fourth at 175).

"Our coaching staff is proud of how we ended the conference season and we're excited about the opportunity to compete in the postseason," Curry said.

Martin was scheduled to host a Division 4 team district on Wednesday, Feb. 5, while Allegan will travel to South Haven for a Division 3 team district on Thursday, Feb. 6.

Individual districts are set for Saturday, Feb. 8. The Tigers will be in Dowagiac and the Clippers will be in Lawton.

Hamilton claims league title

By Jason Wesseldyk

HAMILTON—When the Hamilton boys wrestling team won an OK Blue championship last year, it marked the first league title for the Hawkeyes in 11 years.

Hamilton didn't have to wait nearly that long for another conference crown.

Hosting the OK Black Conference Tournament on Saturday, Feb. 1, the Hawkeyes racked up 228.5 points to outdistance runner-up Holland by 45.5 points.

Zeeland East was third with 143 points, followed by Spring Lake (109.5), Zeeland West (89.5) and Unity Christian (17).

Hamilton was represented in 10 of the 14 weight-class finals. Eight of those Hawkeyes emerged with individual conference championships.

That included Jacob Chase, who prevailed at 175 pounds. Making the day even sweeter for Chase was that he collected the 150th win of his prep career.

Chase is just the eighth Hamilton wrestler to reach that milestone. Teammate Malachi Kapenga is one of the other seven, having secured his 150the victory earlier this season.

The wins by Chase kept him perfect on the season at 42-0.

"Jacob's leadership and effort towards this team is unmatched," Hamilton coach Trenton Holyfield said.

Kapenga also earned a league title, doing so at 138 points.

The other six Hamilton wrestlers to capture conference crowns were Chase Morrison at 126; Bryce Morison at 144; Trace Lopez at 157; Tyler Black at 165; Isaac Nevins at 215 and Shane Dams at 285.

Broden VanWieren (113 pounds) and Gunnar Veenman (190 pounds) both finished runner-up, while Matthew Fales (120 pounds) was third.

Weston Geerlings (106) and Carmine Cardova (132) each placed fourth for Hamilton.

Trojans boys swim gets past Otsego

By Jason Wesseldyk

OTSEGO—When it came to winning events in the boys swim & dive meet between archrivals Plainwell and Otsego on Thursday, Jan. 30, the Bulldogs won the battle.

Otsego placed first in nine of 12 events, including two individual-event wins each from Liam Smith, Willsun Fuller and Blake Guerrant.

But it was the Trojans who won the overall war, using their depth to claim the 101-85 victory.

The teams entered the meet as the final two unbeaten squads in the Southwest and Central Michigan Swim Conference.

This marks the second straight season that Plainwell has prevailed in the dual meet against Otsego.

"The Otsego meet is one of our focus meets of the season," Plainwell coach Andrea Murphy said. "(Otsego coach) Darryl (Belton) is a great coach and he has a good team. It was a challenge as a coach to put a lineup together that would match up with his and try to score as many points as possible per event."

Saugatuck girls upend Fennville in Never Forgotten Game

By Jason Wesseldyk
Sports Editor

FENNVILLE—For the record, the Saugatuck girls basketball team bested archrival Fennville 56-33 on Saturday, Feb. 1.

But for Trailblazers coach Kevin Tringali, the outcome of the game was secondary to the more important meaning of the night.

The game was part of the 14th Annual Never Forgotten Game in honor or Wes Leonard, the Fennville junior who tragically passed away in 2011 after hitting a game-winning shot to seal to 20-0 regular season for his team.

The event helps raise money for the Wes Leonard Heart Team, which donates AEDs to schools and sports organizations throughout the state.

Sixteen AEDs were donated during halftime of the boys game, bringing the total number to more than 625.

Tringali had the opportunity to coach Leonard in AAU basketball.

"As time goes on, less and less people are connected to the actual moment and I'm fortunate enough to be one of the guys who had a chance to coach Wes for a couple years," Tringali said. "I know his family, so it's great that I can share that with my (team) so they understand how special this is.

"A huge thank you to Fennville Schools and the Heart Team for choosing us to be in this game every year because they don't have to do that," Tringali said. "I'm just so proud to be a part of this. Wes was a special kid and what he's done since he's been gone has saved a lot of lives and this night just brings that to light."

Leonard's mom Jocelyn Leonard spoke to the Saugatuck players before the game.

"Mrs. Leonard was nice enough to speak to our team and she shared the connection between our two communities," Tringali said.

Junior Tali Laskowski scored 17 points for Saugatuck, putting her two points behind senior Kennedy Gustafson's team-best 19. Sophomore Mylah Simpson chipped in with 11 points.

Prior to this game, Laskowski—in her first year at Saugatuck after being home schooled—didn't know much about Leonard. That changed when she and her teammates heard from Jocelyn Leonard and watched a documentary about Leonard.

"We heard a lot about (Leonard's) mentality and how he was a really hard worker and a great team player," Laskowski said. "He was just a great kid all-around and to be part of this night was really special."

Saugatuck trailed 9-7 after one quarter and led 20-15 at halftime before using an 18-10 run in the third quarter to get some separation.

Lila Rosema paced Fennville with 12 points, while Cailey Mokma had eight.

Otsego swims (and dives) to win over host Sturgis

STURGIS—It's safe to say that the annual dual meet against Sturgis—especially when it's on the road—isn't the favorite for Otsego boys swim & dive coach Darryl Belton.

"This is arguably this is our toughest meet of the year," said Belton, whose team made the long trek to Sturgis on Tuesday, Jan. 28. "What I mean by that is it's hard for the boys and myself to be at our best.

"It's a long drive, they have an old and tired facility and even though they are a (fellow Southwest and Central Swim Conference) school, this isn't exactly a rivalry."

Despite the negatives that come with making the trip to Sturgis, the Bulldogs still came away with an 87-73 victory.

Belton was pleased with the performances he received from his athletes.

"I was very happy—and somewhat surprised—by how well we swam, dove and competed," he said.

Among the Bulldogs who caught Belton's attention were freshman Liam Raseman and sophomore Blake Guerrant.

Raseman won the 200-yard freestyle at 2:04.75, while Guerrant won both the 200 IM (2:17.46) and the 100 backstroke (1:04.29).

"Liam had a nice meet, especially in the 200," Belton said. "Blake had a super good 100 backstroke."

Belton also praised the team's three divers—Caleb Wesseldyk, Caleb Payseno and Collin Crites—who went one, two, three in their event despite not incorporating some of their more difficult dives.

"All three of our divers put up good numbers doing basic dive sheets," Belton said.

Wesseldyk won diving with a score of 192.95, while Payseno checked in at 165.15 and Crites finished at 162.

Liam Smith, meanwhile, continued his dominant season by winning the 100 butterfly with a pool-record time of 51.36. He also won the 500 free at 4:50.37, which was .57 seconds off the pool record.

Other individual-event winners for Otsego were Willsun Fuller in the 50 free (25.29) and Carson Bydash in the 100 free (57.9).

The Bulldogs also won two of the three relays: the 200 medley team of Smith, Guerrant, Garrison Busscher and Fuller had a time of 1:54.11; and the 400 free team of Dillon Campbell, Guerrant, Smith and Raseman had a time of 3:58.15.

"The boys did a nice job," Belton said.

Plainwell upends South Haven in pool

SOUTH HAVEN—After winter weather caused the postponement of its previous two meets, the Plainwell boys swim & dive team returned to action in a road showdown with South Haven in Tuesday, Jan. 28.

The extended layoff from competition didn't seem to have any negative effects, as the Trojans won 10 of the 12 events and posted the 98-77 win.

"This meet with South Haven went well," Plainwell coach Andrea Murphy said. "It was our first meet back after quite some time off from competitions and with all the snow days we've had.

"With that being said we had a few hiccups in some events. But we finished strong and got the win."

In a show its depth, six different athletes won individual events for Plainwell, with Sam Harper the lone Trojan to secure victories in multiple individual events.

Harper's wins came in the 200-yard IM at 2:08.06 and the 500 freestyle at 5:00.6.

Other individual-event winners for Plainwell were: Austin Susens in the 200 free (2:06.33); Aidan Ranger in diving (235.7); Grady Nugent in the 100 free (56.72); Ben Sparks in the 100 backstroke (1:03.36); and Davis Nooney in the 100 breaststroke (1:14.29).

Plainwell also took top honors in all three relays: Sparks, Nooney, Alex Steele and Nugent won the 200 medley (1:52.84); Nooney, Hiro Nguyen, Harper and Susens won the 200 free (1:41.94); and Harper, Nugent, Susens and Steele won the 400 free (3:42.73).

Allegan girls win two

By Jason Wesseldyk
Sports Editor

A balanced scoring attack coupled with a tenacious defensive effort.

That was a winning recipe for the Allegan girls basketball team in its SAC showdown with visiting Watervliet on Friday, Jan. 31.

Six Tigers scored at least five—and not more than 11—points and Allegan didn't allow more than six points in any quarter in handing Watervliet the 49-17 defeat.

"This was a big home win for us," said Allegan coach Sharron Thompson, whose team improved to 6-4 with its second straight victory.

Allegan wasted no time in setting the tone for the game on both ends of the floor.

Five different Tigers scored in the stanza as Allegan took a 12-3 lead.

Ellie Bishop and Bailey Meade each hit a 3-pointer to lead the way, while Jayden VandenAkker, Ellie Ziemelis and Maddie Antkoviak each scored two points.

The rest of the game was simply more of the same, with Allegan taking leads of 26-7 at halftime and 37-13 after three quarters.

"We moved the ball well and knocked down shots while playing terrific defense, holding the Panthers to single digit scoring each quarter," Thompson said. "It was a pretty balanced scoring and overall a great team effort."

Antkoviak scored a team-high 11 points in the win, followed closely by Ziemelis with 10 and Meade with nine.

Shyonna Thompson added eight points, while VandenAkker and Bishop chipped in with six and five points, respectively.

Hosting Dowagiac in a non-league battle on Tuesday, Jan. 28, Allegan emerged with the 53-42 win.

"It was a back-and-forth battle," Sharron Thompson said.

That it was.

The Tigers jumped out to a 10-5 lead after one quarter, but trailed 23-20 at the intermission.

Allegan roared back in the third quarter, using a 20-10 scoring advantage to go up 40-33 entering the final frame.

"We had a slow start in the first half before turning up the defense and exploding in the second half with scoring to take the game over and secure the victory," Sharron Thompson said.

Meade the third-quarter surge, collecting nine of her game-best 16 points in the stanza. Antkoviak added five points on her way to 13 for the game.

Hayden Mokma finished with 12 points to give Allegan a third double-digit scorer. Ziemelis contributed seven points.

Otsego girls pick up pair of victories on the hardwood

NILES—With a road win over Niles on Friday, Jan. 31, the Otsego girls basketball team would remain in second place in the Wolverine Conference standings behind Vicksburg.

A loss? Well, that would drop the Bulldogs into fourth place.

Fortunately for Otsego coach Tony Koshar and his team, it was the first of those scenarios that played out as the Bulldogs secured the 45-37 victory.

The win moved Otsego to 8-5 overall and 6-2 in league play. Vicksburg maintained its place atop the conference at 8-1, with Edwardsburg and Paw Paw tied for third place at 6-3.

"We had to overcome a little adversity tonight, but we got it done," Koshar said.

The adversity stemmed from the fact that both senior Tessa Prough and sophomore Brooke Smalldon found themselves in foul trouble early in the third quarter.

Prough eventually fouled out a couple of minutes into the fourth quarter. That helped Niles cut what had been a 35-27 Otsego lead at the end of three quarters to five points.

But the Bulldogs executed down the stretch and hit some free throws to put the game away.

Smalldon led the charge at the line, finishing 7-of-7 for the evening. That accounted for more than half of her team-topping 13 points.

Smalldon also had six rebounds.

Audrey Lingbeek joined Smalldon in double figures with 10 points to go with five rebounds and three steals.

Madden Fitzpatrick chipped in with four points and, even more importantly, a team-topping 12 rebounds.

"Those rebounds including a couple of huge offensive rebounds down the stretch to keep possessions alive," Koshar said.

Otsego led 26-12 at halftime.

"We got off to a solid start and really clamped down in the second quarter to build a nice lead," Koshar said.

The road win was the second of the week for the Bulldogs, who stepped outside of league play to defeat Gull Lake 43-28 on Tuesday, Jan. 28.

Otsego held a 11-7 lead after one quarter, pushing that advantage to 29-14 at halftime and 37-18 entering the final frame.

"After a little bit of a slow start, we picked up the pace and started to pull away in the first half," Koshar said. "We slowed down the pace a little bit in the second half as we had some girls a little under the weather and a couple of injuries we were dealing with."

Prough had a huge game, collecting the double-double with 15 points and 13 rebounds. She also had three blocks to match Mya Engbers for team-high honors in that category.

Smalldon joined Prough in double-digit points with 11.

"The girls are playing hard and really playing great defense," Koshar said.

Plainwell finishes runner-up at league meet

By Jason Wesseldyk
Sports Editor

OTSEGO—The situation was simple for the Plainwell boys wrestling team entering the Wolverine Conference Championship on Saturday, Feb. 1:

If the Trojans wanted a shot at securing a share of the league title, they needed to finish at least one place ahead of Three Rivers in tournament.

And while Plainwell put up a good fight, Three Rivers ended up winning the conference meet with 257 points, while the Trojans finished runner-up with 226 points.

The Wildcats—who went 7-0 in league duals—also claimed the overall league title, while Plainwell—which finished second in league duals at 6-1—was second overall.

Otsego was third in the tournament with 104.5 points and finished fourth in the overall conference standings.

Plainwell wrestlers advanced to the finals in nine of the 14 weight classes, with three of those earning league titles.

Trojans who emerged as champs were Dylan Nieuwenhuis at 106 pounds, Austin Gyorkos at 138 pounds and Adin Young at 285 pounds.

Placing second for Plainwell were Tyler Cooper at 113, Grady Erlandson at 120, Benjamin Lynes at 132, Rickey Lynch at 157, Shayden Girton at 190 and Carter Ritchie at 215.

Edwin Johnson V (126 pounds), Thomas Almaguer (144 pounds), Marco Vega (150 pounds) and Aiden Beck (165 pounds) all place third for the Trojans.

Otsego, meanwhile, had a pair of wrestlers earn league titles on their home mats, with another placing second.

Lane Blanchard at 150 and Kole Engleright at 190 were the Bulldogs' champions. Zeke Andrina was second at 126.

Sam Harper accounted for the two individual-event victories for the Trojans, winning the 200-yard freestyle (1:46.58) and the 500 free (4:49.71).

Harper was also part of Plainwell's winning 200 free relay team (1:38.31) along with Alex Steele, Nolan Lindsey and Davis Nooney.

The Trojans also had multiple second-and-third-place finishes, including from divers Aidan Ranger (second at 218.5) and Phillip Mathis (third at 171.6).

"We had a lot of our kids step up and do some big swims," Murphy said. "And our divers had one of the best meets of their season so far."

Belton, meanwhile, was pleased with the way his team competed.

"Obviously, this one is the big one," Belton said. "And while it's disappointing that they got us, I was happy with our effort.

"Plainwell is a little deeper than us and they deserved to win this one."

While the victory puts Plainwell in the driver's seat when it comes to the regular-season portion of the conference schedule, Belton is hopeful that his team can regroup for the SCC Championship.

The SCC meet is slated for Friday, Feb. 28, and Saturday, March 1.

"We have some work to do in the next four weeks and I still like our chances at the league championship," he said. "Hopefully, this will give us a little fire and motivation moving forward and when we see them again, we will be better equipped and prepared."

Smith starred once again for Otsego, picking up wins in the 200 IM (1:55.14) and the 100 breaststroke (1:01.46). Fuller won the 100 butterfly (54.71) and the 100 backstroke (59.08), while Guerrant took the top spot in the 50 free (23.43) and the 100 free (52.04).

Caleb Wesseldyk secured the other individual-event win for Otsego, winning diving with 233.5 points.

The Bulldogs also won the 200 medley relay (1:47.95 by the team of Dillon Campbell, Smith, Fuller and Guerrant) and the 400 free relay (3:31.03 by the team of Guerrant, Liam Raseman, Fuller and Smith).

"We did have many outstanding swims," Belton said.

Martin girls fall to K-Christian

By Jason Wesseldyk
Sports Editor

KALAMAZOO—Jordyn Bonnema is the all-time leading scorer for the Kalamazoo Christian girls basketball program.

On Tuesday, Jan. 28, Martin coaches, players and fans got an up-close view of just how good Bonnema is on the offensive side of the ball.

Bonnema scored at least seven points in each of the first three quarters and finished with 27 points as the Comets handed the Clippers the 50-14 loss.

The game started out as a defensive struggle, with the teams combining for a grand total of zero points in the first three-and-a-half minutes of the opening quarter.

That's when Bonnema and Kalamazoo Christian got rolling, outscoring Martin 11-2 the remainder of the first stanza to take a lead it wouldn't relinquish.

"We started out strong defensively," Martin coach Ben Schipper said. "Unfortunately, they also held us scoreless during that time and we weren't able to capitalize on our great defense and get out to an early lead which would have been huge for our confidence and energy."

Martin did a little better offensively in the second quarter, scoring six points, with two each going to Avery Jager, Marybeth Ritchie and Torryn Harris.

But the Comets scored 16 points during that span to take a 27-8 lead to halftime.

"K Christian always plays really solid defense against us and disrupts our offensive rhythm," Schipper said. "We just couldn't get into anything offensively, so any shot opportunity you see becomes desperate and then you're shooting hoping it goes in rather than just shooting with a clear mind."

Harris led the Clippers with four points.

"We liked Torryn's activity level offensively and defensively," Schipper said.

Avery Jager, Anna Jager and Ritchie added three points each, with Maggie Jager chipping in a free throw.

"We'll continue to work on getting to the rim," Schipper said. "We have to find a way to get there to put pressure on the defense and get to the free throw line. We can't keep ending games with such a free throw discrepancy."

Kalamazoo Christian got to the line 20 times compared to six trips to the line for Martin.

"It's been like that all season because we're not being the aggressor," Schipper said.

Allegan comes up short to Marshall

By Jason Wesseldyk

MARSHALL—The Allegan boys swim & dive team was in fourth place in the Southwest and Central Michigan Swim Conference when it traveled to Marshall on Tuesday, Jan. 28, to face the third-place Redhawks.

And given the proximity in the standings of the two teams, you might have expected this to be a tight, highly contested matchup.

And you'd be right, as the Tigers fell just short by a score of 95-90.

"It was a fiercely competitive meet," Allegan coach Carol Gephart said. "Our boys gave it their all, pushing Marshall to the limit, delivering standout performances and demonstrating incredible determination throughout the meet."

Allegan actually won seven of the 12 events, but that wasn't quite enough to upend Marshall.

Cadel Conrad and Oliver Burnett each collected two individual wins for the Tigers in addition to being on one winning relay each.

Conrad shined in the sprint events, taking the top spot in both the 50-yard freestyle (24.51) and the 100 free (53.93). Burnett, meanwhile, made his mark in the distance events, winning the 200 free (1:56.81) and the 500 free (5:35.44).

Conrad was also part of the 200 medley relay team that opened the meet by taking first place at 1:52.99. Sam Kelley, Ezra Smith and Josh Kelley joined Conrad on that relay team.

Burnett teamed with John DeLaet, Sam Kelley and Smith to win the 400 free relay at 3:50.05.

Allegan's other event victory came from Smith, who swam a 1:12.72 in the 100 breaststroke.

"The boys left it all in the pool tonight," Gephart said. "I couldn't be prouder of their determination and the heart they showed. This was an incredible meet.

"And while we didn't get the win, it showed how competitive and united this team is."

PROTECT YOUR DRINKING WATER:
MAINTAIN YOUR SEPTIC SYSTEM
WHAT IS A SEPTIC SYSTEM?
Water from your bathroom, kitchen and washing machine all go into a septic tank where solids settle out. The majority of the solids are digested by bacteria and the remaining fluid flows into a drainfield where it slowly filters through the soil. Organisms in the soil consume the remaining waste.

ENSURE YOUR SEPTIC SYSTEM IS FUNCTIONING PROPERLY
✔ HAVE YOUR SEPTIC SYSTEM INSPECTED & PUMPED EVERY 3 TO 5 YEARS
• Hire a septic tank service contractor that is required to have a state permit to handle and dispose of sewage
• Businesses are listed in the telephone directory or call the local County Health Department
✔ USE LESS WATER
• Don't let the water run while brushing your teeth, washing your hands and dishes, shaving, etc.
• Spread your laundry washing out over the week to avoid putting a lot of water into the drainfield
✔ AVOID USING CHEMICALS & ADDITIVES
• Chemicals such as drain cleaners, toilet bowl cleaners and "miracle system cleaners" will kill the b down sludge in your septic system
• Always check the product label to make sure it is safe to use in a septic system
• Alternative drain cleaner: ½ cup of baking soda, followed by ½ cup of vinegar, poured down the drain, let sit for a couple minutes and follow with boiling water
✔ DISPOSE ONLY CERTAIN ITEMS IN YOUR SEPTIC SYSTEM
• Only dispose toilet wastes and water used for bathing, cooking, laundry and dishwashing into the septic system
• Cloggers: Diapers, cat litter, cigarette butts, coffee grounds, grease, feminine hygiene products, etc.
• Killers: Household chemicals, gasoline, oil, pesticides, antifreeze, paint, etc.
✔ KEEP VEHICLES, LIVESTOCK & BUILDINGS OFF YOUR SEPTIC SYSTEM
• Keep vehicles away from the drainfield and septic tank and never build or pave over the drainfield
• Driving or building over the drainfield can impact the soil and break pipes. Soil compaction and paving prevents oxygen from getting into the soil. This oxygen is needed by bacteria to break down and treat sewage.
✔ PLANT ONLY GRASS OVER AND NEAR YOUR SEPTIC SYSTEM
• Roots from nearby trees and shrubs might clog and damage the system
• Do not apply fertilizers or manure over the drainfield
✔ LOCATE YOUR SEPTIC TANK & DRAINFIELD AND KEEP A RECORD OF INSPECTION AND PUMPAGE

Letters to the editor

We all need to acknowledge reality, not Trump's version

To the Editor,

I really didn't want to get into this. And I really didn't think I would need to, but here we are.....

After bragging about grabbing unwilling women by the p#*%y, and creeping around the dressing rooms of the Miss Universe and Miss Teen USA pageants (and apparently male golfers locker rooms), after dodging the draft and then insulting those who served, suggesting people ingest or inject bleach during a global pandemic, lied about a stolen election and incited an attack on our US Capital Building, lied about immigrants eating cat and dogs on live national television, two impeachments, and thirty something felony convictions; somehow, the majority of the voting public, frustrated with the far far left, a centuries old conflict between Israel and Palestine, a decades old problem at our southern border, and the pace of recovery from a mismanaged global pandemic in which the incredibly rich somehow got incredibly richer; refused to acknowledge what we all saw with our own eyes, and heard with our own ears, and re-elected Donald Trump as our president. We seem to believe every obvious lie, and disbelieve every obvious truth.

The editor of this paper rejoiced that we were going to "crown" a new president. I would not normally feel the need to mention it, but these are not normal times. Please remember that we inaugurate presidents. Kings are crowned.

A couple of years ago, I went on a WW2 "Band of Brothers" history tour. We followed the path of Easy Company from their training grounds in England, to jumping into France the night before D-day, to fighting and dying their way through Nazi occupied Europe, to enduring the bitter cold winter and unimaginable bombardment at the Battle of the Bulge, to liberating a satellite camp of the larger Dachau concentration camp, to the "Eagles Nest" (Hitler's lavish Mountaintop retreat). Visiting the multiple American soldier's cemeteries, and the seemingly endless rows of American servicemen's graves was very emotional. But it wasn't until we visited Dachau concentration camp, that I realized that in the span of about 12 years, Germany had gone from a democracy in 1933, to allied troops liberating concentration camps in 1945.

As I write this, it is January 27, 2025. National Holocaust Remembrance Day. One week ago, Elon Musk did a Sieg Heil salute at an inauguration event. Yes, we all saw what we thought we saw. No, he was not waving or dabbing or hailing a cab. That was a Nazi salute at an inauguration event for an American President!

President Trump says he is an open book. He tells us he is crazy rich and pays too much in taxes, yet he refuses to release his tax returns. He tells us he is the smartest person in the world, yet he sued to keep his grades from becoming public. He tells us the 2020 election was stolen, yet not a single person has made that claim after putting their hand on a bible and swearing to tell the truth, and nothing but the truth in a court of law. He tells us government is corrupt and has too many employees, yet he gave everyone in his family government jobs. He tells us he is going to get government out of our lives, unless you are a woman of course, then he is all up in your business. He tells us he wants government accountability, yet he fired 18 inspectors general. He tells us he supports police and is tough on crime, yet he pardoned 1500 convicted (many confessed and most on video) perpetrators of the January 6 riot/failed coup/storming of the capital who attacked police. He tells us he will end the war in Ukraine; true, surrendering to Putin will end it.

I believe that Donald Trump and his enablers are setting women, the middle class, and equality back generations. He has surrounded himself with self-serving billionaires, while doing everything he can to separate hard working people from their money. Yes, I'm looking at you; gold shoes, cowboy/astronaut/Rambo posters, NFT's, trading cards, Trump Bibles and digital Trump coins. Yes, the far left is too far left. Yes, we need to solve the issues on our southern border. Not because they are all horrible people, but because every country has the right to maintain secure borders, and have a functioning immigration system. However, we should not have to give up our democracy or our humanity to do it. We are a country of 330 million people, living on a planet with eight billion people on it. No matter how much we might like to, we cannot solve the problems of every living soul on this planet. Although, just because we can't do everything, doesn't mean we shouldn't do everything we can.

I do not know who all killed JFK, or if aliens or bigfoot exist. But I do know that I live on a round planet that is experiencing climate change, we sent men to the moon, January 6 was not a peaceful tour of the capital, science is real, the holocaust happened, the sky is blue and water is wet. I wonder at what point we will resume acknowledging reality. I hope it is not too late.

God Bless our American Democracy, and ALL of His people,

David Van Zoeren

Reader claims Trump, cabinet not fit for duty

Dear Editor:

America does not have the president it wants. It elected a liar whose supporters will believe no matter how idiotic his claims are. His cabinet picks stand alone among all presidents as the largest group of unqualified people ever nominated (at least since Betsy DeVos). A news show morning host for SecDef? An AG nominee who dropped a lawsuit over Trump U when he made a large contribution to her campaign? Kristi Noem who has absolutely no experience in this arena? Tulsi Gabbard whose close relationships with Russia doomed her political run in 2016? Oh yeah. We can't forget Dr. Oz. A TV quack who now is in charge of our health care system. A man who has touted numerous products that don't work but filled his wallet. They and the rest have one thing in common. They are large dollar contributors and they won't ever tell Trump no.

Bitch about the price of gasoline but there's that pesky "free market" thing. The government has little to no control over gas prices unless Trump intends to nationalize them. Instead, as he promised during the campaign, if oil company CEO's would give him $1 billion he'd slow down or stop EV production and sales in this country. And our interest rates are in line with most industrialized countries. And his plan to lower grocery prices? Since he has not elucidated I can only conclude that it's like his promises from the first admin. It's coming in 2 weeks (right). And you can get your panties in a bunch over Venezuela but 60% of our oil imports come from Canada. Yes, our neighbor to the north that Donald takes so much pleasure in denigrating. And throwing tariffs at them will certainly not help as they have already indicated they will respond in kind. And calling people who are in favor of combating climate change (yes, it's real) "elites" when most of his advisors are millionaires/billionaires is pretty condescending.

I know it's in vogue on the right but going back on your prior treaties makes us nothing but a pitiful group of LIARS. In 2011 when the USSR collapsed Ukraine had the 3rd, yes 3rd, largest nuclear arsenal in the world. In return for giving up those weapons the US and Great Britain extended security assurances to Ukraine. If you're so hot to abandon them after we promised aid maybe we give them back their nukes. Sound good?

Ah yes. Immigration. Certainly a problem but there was a bipartisan agreement on a new bill hailed by everyone (except Don) as the best in decades and supported by the US Border Patrol. It died in the House because Trump told Speaker Johnson to not bring it to the floor as it was one of his major campaign issues and if it went away he wouldn't have as much to bitch about. Also, for all those who proclaim that they are freeloaders or taking American jobs A) show me the vast groups of Americans who want to harvest crops or take low paying menial jobs (it doesn't exist) and B) undocumented immigrants paid over $97 BILLION in taxes (state and federal) in 2022. Again, growers are already sounding the alarm that they will not be able to bring in their crops this year.

And then lets talk about the one man you left out. Elon Musk. Musk is the man who bought a president for $280 million. He is a person who communicates frequently with Putin and his Nazi salute at the inauguration should be enough in itself to have him removed from the country.

Donald J. Trump is a low life adjudicated rapist, con man, grifter, and felon. (as is his immigrant wife) who's only ambition is to be praised by everyone and lining his and his oligarchs (yes, that's what the rich are now) pockets.

So when you want to praise the new administration try using facts.

Faces in the Crowd

G C Stoppel

"You should walk at least 10,000 steps a day," is a message that has been repeated for over half a century. That number of steps means that we have walked, roughly, about 4 and a half miles. This week's question: "Do you get in your 10,000? Or how many miles do you think you walk?"

-Couple at a gas station on M-89: Woman: "Yeah. My partner and I run marathons and are on the track team at Northwestern, so yeah, easy-peasy."

-Man near the hardware store in Fennville: "I used to get close, and then I found out that the Japanese company that made the counters [pedometers] pulled that number out of the air. I threw my pedometer away after that."

-Couple near the Blue Goose: Both laughed. Woman: "Nope. I used to walk a lot more when I was running after the kids and the grandchildren, but not now. Same goes for him."

-Woman near the Fennville drug store: "Probably. I work on the floor at [big box store] and yeah, I probably do." Big smile. "I should tell my husband I want a pedometer for my birthday Meh, he'd tell me I could get it on the employee discount so just go buy one."

-Woman with her: "My daughter's boyfriend gave her one for Valentine's Day and she broke up with him right then and there." When asked if she kept the pedometer, the woman said, "She was going to give it back, but then kept it and used it. She lost a ton of weight and found a better fellow."

-Man near Minnie's: "I sure wish I needed one." Points to his right knee. "I need to get it replaced. If It didn't hurt so much…. But maybe after I finish therapy. We'll see."

-Man near the Allegan Post Office: "I heard someone say that those pedometer things send your information to the cloud, and then the Chinese keep track of it. I don't need them knowing anything about me."

-Man, same location: "Ten thousand steps is about four and a half miles, you say? I probably do that, but I don't have something to keep track for me."

-Younger woman: "Definitely. Walking is the best exercise there is! I'm obsessive about getting in my steps, even during the snow we just had."

Peek at the Past

From the pages of The Allegan News and The Allegan County News and Gazette:

Feb. 6, 1950

Checks keep grandma very busy: The habit of an Allegan County grandmother of writing checks without money in the bank to back them up has kept her in hot water for the better part of the past 12 months.

Mrs. Pearl Y. Keyser, formerly of RR 1, Shelbyville, is in the Kane County jail, Elgin, Ill., on a bad check charge. How she got there is a complicated story.

Mrs. Kyser is also out on a $300 cash bond and awaiting (it says here) trial in Allegan County circuit court on separate charges of forgery and offering and publishing a forged document, namely a check for $500.

She passed that check in Hopkins. The bank clerk there could not at first give an adequate description of her. But Mrs. Keyser was accommodating enough to return and try to pass another check. This time, the teller got an adequate description.

Currently, however, she has been missing since Dec. 1. Relatives finally heard from her last Monday. She was in jail in Elgin, Ill.

Specialists make 'home calls': "The program is underway," Naomi Barber said. "Now, all we have to do is deal with the problems as they arise."

Ms. Barber, psychologist coordinator for the Allegan County Intermediate School District and chairperson for the Regional Diagnostic Clinic, was talking about the newest Diagnostic Clinic program—Infant Development.

The program, which began Nov. 1 with a search for handicapped infants, has been in operation for two months in the local district with the aim of developing the maximum potential of handicapped youngsters.

Initially designed by assistant superintendent for special education Michael Fitzpatrick, Development Center principal Lisa Wildfong and Ms. Barber, the program involves a home trainer working with parents in their homes weekly to help them gain a greater understanding of general child development, their child's particular disability and their adjustment to that disability, Ms. Barber stated.

A recent Michigan law state that training must be provided for all trainable physically and mentally handicapped persons form infancy to age 25, in full operation in districts of its size.

Feb. 10, 2000

Youth worship with A2J: The youth at Trowbridge United Methodist Church in Otsego have found a way—their own unique way—to worship.

They are involved in A2J, a group now in its ninth year, that gives them a chance to use their talents at acting, singing and even performing rock music during services at their won church and at tother area churches.

A2J, which stands for Addicted 2 Jesus, began when Garry Bouwman, the youth paster at the church, and his wife noticed a trend among church-going students when they reach the teen years. Bouwman said this is true not just at his church, but at any church.

"My wife and I noticed that when teens reach a certain age, they tend to leave the church because churches in general aren't providing anything for them," Bouwman said.

So they decided to start the group, which Bouwman said at first was intended to be just a drama troupe. He said they had hoped to get at least a few students to attend the troupe's first meeting, but 22 came.

Since then, the group has grown to include about 45 members. They are involved not just in drama, but also in music, including the group's Christian rock band Grape Soda.

They also sponsor shows by other Christian rock groups.

Feb. 6, 2020

Flagpole donated to Hamilton veteran: A Christmas Day surprise will help remind a U.S. Army veteran in Hamilton of his days of service thanks to a donation by a Michigan company.

Flagpoles Etc. of Holly honored 33-year-old Christopher Krauss of Hamilton with free design and installation last month of a flagpole at his Heath Township home.

"I had wanted a flagpole for a long time in remembrance of my time in the military but never really had the extra money for it," Krauss said. "It's great. It looks really nice in our yard."

Flagpoles Etc. teamed with the nonprofit group Flags for Vets, whose mission is to honor veterans with a flagpole at no cost. More than 400 veterans in 23 states have been honored with flagpoles, according to the Flags for Vets website.

"Our veterans deserve to be honored and given respect for the sacrifices they made during their service," Brian Mann, owner of Flagpoles Etc., wrote in a press release.

Krauss was based on Fort Bliss, Texas, and deployed to Mosul, Iraq, for 16 months between 2006 and 2008. He received a Purple Heart and was medically retired and is 100 percent disabled according to the Veterans Administration.

Krauss' wife Tanny saw a story about a veteran who walked around Lake Michigan and received a flagpole.

"Out of curiosity about the company, she went to their Facebook profile and stumbled across the program," Krauss said. "She arranged the whole thing for me as a surprise and stuck a tiny homemade flagpole in yard for me to find on Christmas Day."

RELIGION SECTION

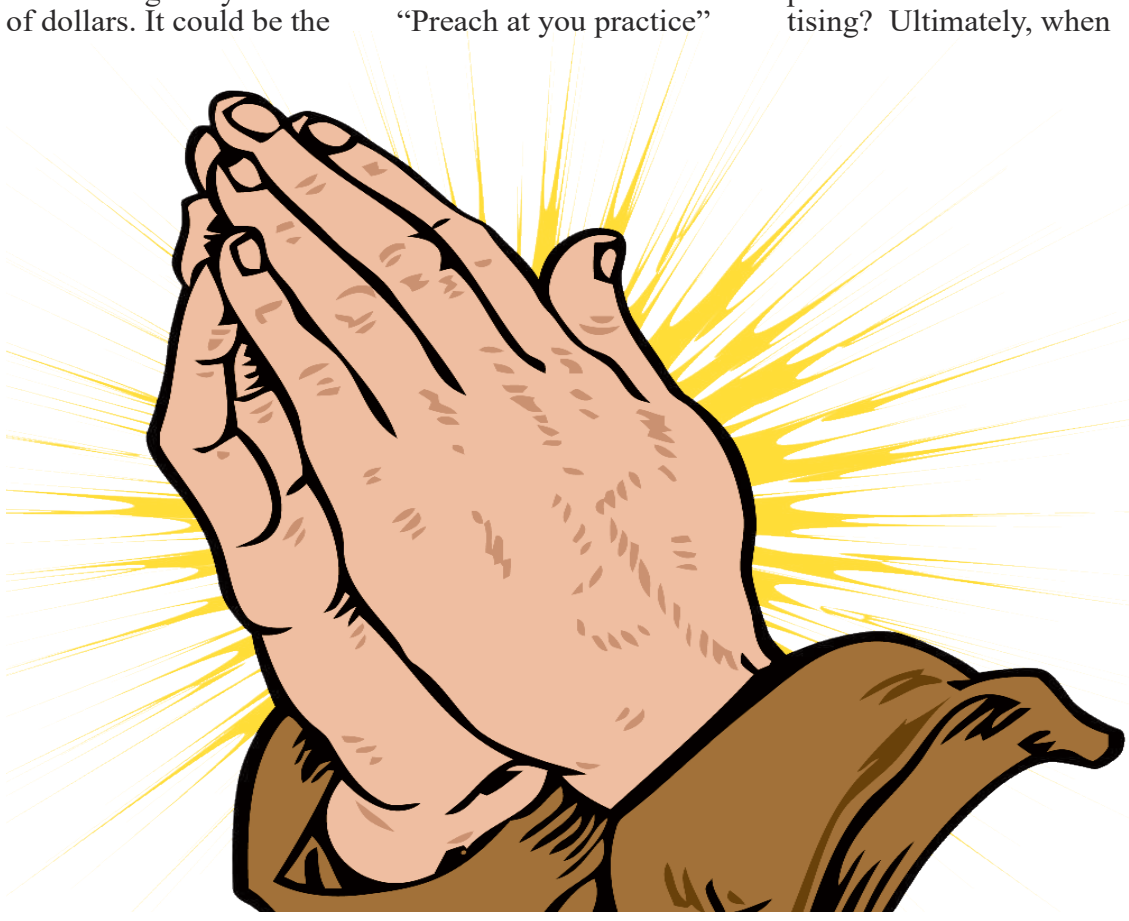
Many times have we heard or said, "Practice what you preach!" Usually it is a strong message that if we want to tell people we are a disciple of Jesus we need to act like one, not just talk about it. Of course, that can be very subjective. What you or I think might be acceptable Christian behavior, might be very different from the beliefs of another person.

Today, let's reverse this old statement to make it, "Preach what you practice." In short, tell anyone and everyone exactly what words you use, some of your core beliefs and what you do because they need to hear you say it. For some people, that is a spooky proposition.

For example, there have always been politicians who touted family values and virtues on the campaign trail and then were caught engaging in activities that were the polar opposite. Perhaps it might be the merchant who states their good service or low prices but never makes good on it. Or, we have heard clergy speak about their care and compassion for the poor, and the need to generously assist them, only to find out they have been salting away millions of dollars. It could be the champion of organic gardening and a strict vegan diet who was spotted in a restaurant enjoying a steak.

You get the general drift.

That is what makes "Preach at you practice" such an interesting concept. What if we really have to give an accounting of our words and actions to other people? What if we have to be scrupulous about our personal truth in advertising? Ultimately, when we stand before the throne of God, we will have to give an accounting for our words and actions. Jesus takes it a step further by including our thoughts.



It is not just the seemingly big stuff. It is everything. Children are sometimes very quick to notice when there is a disconnect between their parent's words and actions. Often, it is on something small. "How come you said we couldn't have candy before dinner, but you just ate a cookie?" The notice when the olds talk about obeying the speed limit but drive well over it.

One hallmark of practical practicing Christianity is a complete integration between thoughts, words, and deeds. We practice what we preach so that in turn we can honestly preach or tell others how we make God's kingdom very real.
